

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to the field of genetic engineering. More particularly the invention relates to a method of quantitating transgenes or transgene expression by using sequences commonly included in transformation plasmids or vectors. The invention also provides primers and probes which can be used with this method.

RECEIVED
U.S. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE